Warren, Jr., immediately embarked upon its task. Its major production was recommended legislation which was enacted as The Judicial Department Act of This Act prescribed the organizational and operational details of the General Court of Justice and established an Administrative Office of the Courts. The 1962 Judicial Article provided for an Appellate Division consisting of the Supreme Court, a Superior Court Division and a District Court Division in the General Court of Justice. The 1965 Act provided for gradual implementation of the new court system. The schedule of activation is shown in Appendix I. Because of and two Opinions were per curiam. Of these opinions, 36 dealt with civil cases and 31 dealt with criminal cases. The court affirmed the lower court in 27 cases and took corrective action in 40 cases. The Supreme Court considered 102 petitions for certiorari from the Court of Appeals. With the appointment of three additional judges in July, 1969, the Court of Appeals is now fully staffed. The court, sitting in panels of three, considered 584 cases during 1969. This is only two more than the number considered in 1968. The great majority of the 496 appeals (255 civil and 241 criminal) came
